

CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER – MADRID, SPAIN

Location: Madrid, Spain
Employee type: Full-Time
Industry: Healthcare, Health Services, Biotech
Education: M.D.
Experience: Minimum five years

Who We Are

Life Length, the world's leading healthcare diagnostic company in telomere measurement and testing, is seeking to recruit a CMO at its headquarters in Madrid.

The successful candidate will join Spain's only CMS, CLIA Certified A2LA & ISO 15189 Accredited Clinical & Diagnostic laboratory and the only company in the world able to offer a highly scalable technology to measure telomeres individually in cells being used by doctors around the world in preventive and personalized medicine as well as in clinical trials in oncology, drug and nutraceutical development.

Job Responsibilities

The Chief Medical Officer will be responsible for providing clinical leadership of Life Length's tests, establishing further clinical validation and evidence of the importance of telomere testing, providing educational training to physicians on how to use the test in clinical practice.

The CMO will be the referral physician for those patients performing telomere testing with Life Length directly and will oversee medical regulatory legal and compliance areas. He or she will practice within the legal and ethical guidelines established by the Medical Practice Act, the Physicians Code of Ethics and the Specialty Standards of Practice.

The CMO will be responsible for overseeing and preparing all relevant collateral materials for medical education and working hand-in-hand with the commercial team and will also prepare management reports for C-level and materials for Board meetings.

The CMO will be responsible for providing leadership for Life Length's clinical studies for the validation of Telomere Analysis Technology® and telomerase activity tests.

The CMO will be responsible for identifying new clinical applications for Life Length's diagnostic assays and contributing to the incorporation of new assays relevant to Life Length's clients.

The CMO will travel to meet with clients and participate in and speak at relevant medical and related conferences.

The CMO will report jointly to the COO and CEO and form part of the Senior Management team to establish long-range goals, strategies and plans for the Company.
